NO. 200—SEVENTY-SIXTH YEAR

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 2, 1934

HITLER IS NOW PRESIDENT OF GERMANY

TROOPS TAKE MAIN OFFICE OF STRIKERS

National Guardsmen Arrest Two Ringleaders and Confiscate Forty Cars

THOUSANDS WATCH MINNEAPOLIS ACTION

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 1 (AP).—A bloodless victory was the National Guard's tonight, after a day of activity in which a Minneapolis army of occupation in the truck drivers' strike seized headquarters of leaders, harassed pickets and arrested more than a score of persons.

Operations of the military started soon before John Beier, a picket wounded on July 20, when strikers clashed with police armed with shotguns, died in a hospital, to bring to the number of men who have died in the present strike, the second one here this year. Two men were killed and scores injured in the May walk-out.

Federal mediators, Rev. Francis Haas and E. H. Dunnington, planned their next moves in efforts to break the impasse between strikers and employer.

Plooding pavements in the grey light of early morning, 1,000 men, here to enforce military rule, which strikers defied, came to headquarters of the drivers. Troops arrested two ringleaders, confiscated forty automobiles and dispersed several score occupants.

GUERRILLA ATTACKS
Undeterred by troops, however, striking pickets launched guerrilla attacks on the jump answering calls for aid. Wholesale arrests of pickets followed. Some were armed with lead pipes.

Reports were received that several farm trucks were overturned outside of town. At least one driver was slugged.

Officers announced that three more leaders of the strikers had been picked up. They were William Brown, president of the Truck Drivers' Union; Myles Dunne and Henry Trank. All were placed under arrest.

GUARDSMEN AND POLICE AT WAR

Bloodshed Feared in New Orleans as Political Dispute Becomes Tense

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1 (AP).—Some 500 National Guardsmen, under the orders of Senator Huey Long, and 1,400 policemen, directed by Mayor T. Semmes Walmisley, both armed for war, tonight were held in readiness for a break in New Orleans' bitter political controversy.

The soldiers, controlled by the Long political machine, in uniform and carrying arms, were bivouacked at Jackson Barracks, while the policemen, pistols and riot guns ready, were at headquarters, and leaders of both sides said that any overt act would bring bloodshed.

In reserve, Long had 800 militia men, who might be called at any minute.

Machine guns were trained on the city hall by the troops, and the police were ready to fight it out if the soldiers appeared at police headquarters.

Mayor Walmisley had been informed that the Long forces might attempt to take over the police department at noon today, when the new police commission, created by the recent Long-dominated legislature, was authorized by the law to take office.

The Walmisley faction previously had obtained a restraining order in court to prevent the commission's functioning, and the mayor said he would enforce the court's order with armed police if Long's troops appeared.

Air Train to Be Operated Over States

NEW YORK, Aug. 1 (CP).—A test flight of the "air train," which is scheduled to make its first flight to Washington, Thursday, was successfully carried out today at Floyd Bennett Field.

An airplane towed three gliders over New York City and headed down the bay toward Floyd Bennett Field. Over the field, the gliders were cut off, landing five minutes apart.

The "air train" will operate commercially between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and the capital.

Track Meet Marks Opening of New Park

In the picture above, J. Hall, of H.M.C.S. Vancouver, is seen winning the 440-yard sprint from a field of five.

B.C. PREMIER RAISES CRY OF PACIFIC RIGHTS AT OTTAWA

Disfranchising Looked Upon With Thanks by Doukhobors

VERIGIN, Sask., Aug. 1 (CP).—Peter Verigin, spiritual leader of Canadian Doukhobors, was unanimously endorsed as leader of the Named Doukhobors of Canada, at the party's annual convention here, tonight. The Named Doukhobors of Canada is an organization made up of all classes, and includes the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood.

Recent action of the Federal Government in disfranchising all Doukhobors, was termed an action "to be looked upon with thanks rather than an affront."

"By this, the Canadian Government has exempted us for all time from military service," J. P. Shukin, vice-president of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, told the delegates.

U.S. CUTS NAVY PLANE BUILDING

To Oppose Any Realignment of Existing Naval Ratios for Leading Powers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP).—The United States naval high command was disclosed authoritatively tonight to have determined on a sharp reduction in naval aviation construction.

Present plans, which may be altered, call for 274 fewer planes than the 2,184 which the navy had decided would be necessary under the Vinson Bill, authorizing a treaty strength navy by 1942. A thousand planes now comprise the United States fleet, and plans had evolved to build the other 1,184 in annual instalments.

MAY BE REDUCED AGAIN
High officials now have chopped down the total to a tentative figure of 1,910 planes as adequate for peacetime navy requirements. The total may be cut slightly again before a final one is reached.

Uncovering of the new plans followed a statement in which Secretary Claude Swanson told Japan and the world—that while the United States might favor a slash of 30 per cent in naval armaments, it would oppose vigorously any realignment of existing naval ratios for the principal powers.

WEALTHY FARMER SLAIN BY BANDITS
LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 1 (AP).—F. D. "Dixie" Knight, sixty-eight, wealthy Jessamine County farmer, land owner and horse breeder, was shot to death in his home, near Lexington, tonight, by two bandits, who robbed him and two other persons in the residence of jewelry valued at $1,500 and $7 in cash.

QUEBEC, Aug. 1 (CP).—The trip of several Christian brothers to Three Nicolet lakes ended in tragedy, yesterday, when Rev. Brother Edgar, of the Quebec Commercial Academy, drowned while swimming.

HANGMAN IS BUSY AGAIN IN AUSTRIA

Third Nazi Executed and Accomplice Sentenced to Twenty Years

PUBLIC EMPLOYEES' SALARIES WITHHELD

VIENNA, Aug. 1 (AP).—With the hangman's rope, a sentence of imprisonment and empty pay envelopes, the Government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg today pressed its fight against the defeated Nazi rebels of Austria.

Friedrich Wurmig, a Nazi, was hanged at 8 o'clock tonight at Innsbruck, three hours after he was sentenced to death for killing Police Commandant Franz Heckl in that city last Wednesday.

Wurmig, third Nazi to die on the gallows in two days, collapsed when he was told clemency was refused, and had to be carried to the gallows.

ACCOMPLICE SENTENCED
An alleged accomplice, Christian Meyer, was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment, receiving clemency. It was reported, because he had revealed Nazi secrets to the Government.

Trial of another Nazi is scheduled to begin here tomorrow. Economic pressure against Nazis in Government employ was ordered.

Salaries of all persons in the public employ who are suspected of aiding or encouraging the Nazi revolt will be withheld until their cases are investigated.

PREMIER TURNS ON GIANT SIGN

Huge Illuminated Display to Advertise Canadian Products in London

OTTAWA, Aug. 1 (CP).—Moving a switch in Ottawa this evening, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett illuminated a giant electric sign, placed on the Grand Building, opposite Canada House, in London.

The sign, a part of the advertising programme conducted through the office of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner, bears a green maple leaf super-imposed on a red triangle, the new "Canadian quality" mark recently registered in the United Kingdom.

Beneath the mark appear the words, "Canada—The Empire's Leader." In the next line, "Ask Your Grocer."

LINE OF LETTERS
At the bottom of the sign there is a running line of electric letters capable of presenting a message of considerable length.

The Prime Minister, whose words were carried to London by transatlantic telephone, spoke as follows:

"The lever I am about to press in this capital of Canada will cause the illumination in the capital city of our Empire of an electric display sign, proclaiming to all who pass by, in what is not only the largest but the most discriminating market of the world, that products marked with the maple leaf on the red triangle carry the assurance that they are Canadian made, of standard quality and unrivaled excellence."

NEW PARK IS OPENED HERE

Mayor David Leeming Officially at Macdonald Playing Field Ceremony

Macdonald Park, Victoria's latest addition to its many playing fields, was officially opened yesterday afternoon by Mayor David Leeming, during the track and field meet conducted as part of the city's Navy Week programme.

Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province, opened, His Worship stated, Premier; members of the City Council and school boards; Vice-Admiral Drax, Commander-in-Chief of the America and West Indies station; Commander George C. Jones, R.C.N., Chief of Police Thomas Healey, officers of H.M.S. Norfolk and the Royal Canadian Navy, and from West Point Barracks were in attendance. J. T. Braden represented Alderman R. T. Williams, who was unable to be present owing to illness.

In declaring the playing field officially opened, His Worship stated that in the Macdonald Park Victoria had a sports field of which it might justly be proud. It was large enough to permit of two Rugby fixtures being played at one time, the city's chief magistrate pointed out. The opening of the field to the public marks the attainment of the first objective of the Greater Victoria Playing Fields Association. Some three years ago the association was formed to provide more

Statesman Dies at Estate at Neudeck—Nation Stunned at News

DEATH COMES AT CRITICAL PERIOD

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler assumed the presidency of Germany today, upon the death of President Paul von Hindenburg. The Cabinet went into session immediately on receipt of the news of von Hindenburg's death.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—General Paul von Hindenburg, President of the German Reich, died at 9 a.m. today, at his East Prussian estate, at Neudeck. He lapsed into a deep coma at 5:45 a.m. and did not regain consciousness. One of his last visitors was Chancellor Adolf Hitler, who spent several hours with the dying president yesterday. The entire German nation was plunged into deep mourning as the venerable statesman and field marshal was dolized by the nation.

WAS STURDY MAN

BERLIN, Aug. 1 (AP).—It was not until the present Summer that the infirmities of the nearly eighty-seven-year-old President Paul von Hindenburg became serious.

Until then he attended regularly to affairs of state with slight interruptions. His official duties, however, were tending to become gradually less strenuous as Chancellor Hitler assumed firmer control.

These duties came to be confined almost to signing state documents.

PICTURE GIVEN NOT TRUE ONE

Dominion Officials Correct False View on Reciprocal Treaty Possibilities

OTTAWA, Aug. 1 (CP).—Dominion Government officials do not believe the reports which came from Washington, yesterday, respecting the attitude of the United States to possibilities of a reciprocal trade treaty with Canada, give a correct picture of the situation so far as the Dominion is concerned.

The dispatch stated that Canada was one of the potentially good customer nations removed from the list of those countries with which United States might enter into immediate trade negotiations. The reason given was that Canada would first have to compose political differences on the question of reciprocity, and that economic barriers also constituted a barrier.

NO SUCH DIFFICULTIES
No question of political difficulties entered into the picture, it was declared here by high authorities. Obviously, it was stated, the Government in Canada acts for the Dominion, just as the Government of the United States acts for that country.

The dispatch was clearly not an official statement, it was declared, as the view of the United States Government was given officially by the State Department in February last, when the following communication was issued by that office and read in the House of Commons, here, by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett:

"Trade between the United States and Canada is larger in normal times than that between any other countries in the world, and it is natural that both countries should desire to restore the reciprocal flow of commodities to normal proportions. We hope to be in a position to reach an early date to take steps looking to the completion of a trade agreement with Canada, which will further the interests of both countries. We hope first to bring into practical application the 'good neighbor' policy between these two great countries which have so much in common."

So far as the Dominion Government is aware that statement still represents the attitude of the United States Government.

RAIN DOES NOT LESSEN BEAUTY

Visitors Say Victoria and Vancouver Island Are Charming in All Weather

Rain does not detract from the beauty of Victoria and the surrounding countryside, but only tends to bring out another phase of the city's natural beauty, according to five visitors at the Empress Hotel, yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Van Gieson, of Los Angeles, were high in their praise of the country, declaring themselves to be charmed with the green freshness of the grass and trees. They said it was a delight to see vegetation growing luxuriantly without the benefit of irrigation systems.

On a pleasure visit through Canada and the United States, J. MacIntosh, of London, England, is spending a few days in the city. He, too, found Victoria has charm in the rain, and stated he was enjoying his visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Roche, of San Francisco, were not phased by the inclement weather, yesterday. They said they enjoyed the soft Victoria rain, and, during the afternoon, found pleasure in a long walk in the city.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 1 (CP).—Word has been received that Provincial Police headquarters here, that Joseph Piese, logger, East Pender Street, succumbed Tuesday morning to injuries received when he was struck by a falling tree near Alert Bay.

Accidental death was the verdict of a coroner's jury, following the inquest held at Alert Bay. It is reported by Constable Norman DeWitt, Police are awaiting burial instructions from a brother in New Mexico.

REGISTRATION IS PROCEEDING

Compilation of Fresh Relief Lists Will Take Weeks—Aid Continues

Provision for unemployed in the province was being continued, yesterday, on existing relief lists, with little change from the system followed for the last two years. Provincial officials explained it will require several weeks to complete registration begun three days ago, and proceeding now with a corps of relief investigators at work.

The only material change brought by August 1 in the relief system was an increase from $2.80 to $3.20 in the valuation placed on a day's relief work. This works out at 40c an hour. Applications for relief will be dealt with as formerly, those eligible being given an order on the nearest road foreman for as many days work as their eligibility under the scale allows.

ALLOWANCES SAME

The increased valuation, however, does not increase the amount to which any individual may be entitled, but does reduce the number of days' work that must be done for the money, if work is available. Where work is not available, direct relief must follow.

In addition, the Province has to make provision for limited operation of the "statute labor" plan, under which farmers are permitted to work out one year's taxes, where their property stands in threat of tax default. The scheme does not apply to taxpayers within municipal boundaries.

As far as could be ascertained, no direct word on relief, from Ottawa, was received by the Government here during the day.

ENJOYING VISIT IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Although they have viewed all the heralded beauties and wonders of Europe, Mr. and Mrs. C. Hilton, of London, England, are finding great pleasure in their visit to British Columbia, they said yesterday at the Empress Hotel. They will leave today for Vancouver, from where they will embark for Alaska.

Arriving in Victoria from Quilcum Beach, yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Hilton said they thoroughly enjoyed the natural beauties of the Island, and the graciousness of the people.

Chamber of Commerce Discusses Condition of Roads in Cowichan District

DUNCAN, Aug. 1.—Duncan Chamber of Commerce held a well-attended meeting, here, last night. An interesting report of the recent Associated Island Boards of Trade convention, held in Duncan, was read by the president, Robert Sanderson.

A letter was received from L. F. Solly, asking the local chamber to use its influence to try to improve the approach to Duncan from Victoria. It was decided to ask the Indian Department to consider the matter of putting up railings through the Indian village, both as a protection for Indian children and to improve the appearance of the village itself.

An animated discussion took place on the state of the district roads, particularly the road to Lake Cowichan, and the public works committee of the chamber will see the resident engineer, and, if necessary, will ask the local member to arrange an interview with Provincial Government authorities on the subject.

CONDITIONS IN SOUTH IMPROVE

F. H. Bennett Says Business Men Expect Steady March to Better Times

Business men in California earnestly believe conditions in the United States are improving materially and will continue to do so for some time to come, F. H. Bennett, manager and owner of the Deep Well Guest Ranch at Palm Springs, California, said yesterday, at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Bennett stated the opinion held by many in the South is that conditions will right themselves within the near future in a slow but permanent way.

Accompanied by his wife and son, Mr. Bennett is enjoying a few days' rest here before embarking on a fishing trip. Mrs. Bennett, in the meantime, will board ship for a cruise to Alaska.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bennett say they are fascinated with the country, and intend to come again to British Columbia and visit Victoria.

FEARS REPRISALS IF COUNCIL ACTS

Trades and Labor Council Concerned Over Proposal to Force City Employees to Move

Fearing reprisals from adjoining municipalities if the City Council insists upon all its employees living within the city limits, the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council is carefully watching developments, but will take no action in the matter until after the next meeting of the aldermanic board.

Delegates to the Trades Council, last night, agreed to allow the question to remain on the order paper for two weeks, but the tone of the brief discussion was in opposition to the proposed move, one of the delegates describing the proposal as "small town politics." Another delegate asked if adjoining municipalities would be justified in specifying only resident employees for all work of a civic nature, and if the municipality of Saanich might wish for compensation for the privilege of allowing Victoria to advertise tourist attractions located in Saanich.

In view of the importance of the proposed measure now before the City Council, President R. D. Lemm, of the Trades Council, suggested that further discussion be postponed until after the meeting of the aldermen.

Days and Dates Of Victoria and Vancouver Island

VICTORIA, which was incorporated as a city seventy-two years ago, has today seventy-four miles of paved streets, 136 miles of tree-lined boulevards, and a supply of pure mountain-lake water.

Located on the map at 48 degrees 25 minutes North latitude and 123 degrees and 22 minutes West longitude, practically on the same degree of latitude as Paris, France, the city of Victoria has a milder climate than the French capital, owing to the influence of the warm Japanese current on this coast. The average temperature here in summer is sixty-one degrees, while in winter it is forty-two degrees, and the annual rainfall is only twenty-seven inches.

It was suggested that further discussion be postponed until after the meeting of the aldermen.

MRS. H. J. CHESSON IS LAID AT REST

Funeral services for Mrs. H. J. Chesson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dupen, Surrey Block, Victoria, who passed away in Vancouver on July 29, after a long illness, were held yesterday afternoon, Rev. Canon F. A. P. Chadwick officiating.

Mrs. S. M. Morton sang as a solo, "O Lord That Will Not Let Me Go," and the hymn was "Pence, Perfect Peace."

The ritualistic service of the Rebekah Lodge, of which Mrs. Chesson was a member, was given by Mrs. Emma Axon, noble grand; Mrs. Enid McCabe, vice-grand, and Mrs. H. P. Doane, chaplain, all members of Carle Lodge. The large number of floral offerings received attested to the high esteem in which Mrs. Chesson was held by all who knew her.

Palbearers were W. L. Woodhouse, S. Ruffell, E. S. Mitchell, Robert Dunham, Arthur Lee and Albert Olinson. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Western Provinces Take Stride Toward Uniform Education

Adoption of Standard Readers in Schools of B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba Announced by Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, With Receipt of Books

A LONG-DESIRED move in the direction of uniformity in the educational systems of the four Western Provinces of Canada, has been effected with the decision by the educational departments of these provinces, to adopt new uniform readers and teachers' manuals in the grade schools and correspondence schools of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. The British Columbia Department of Education has just received a consignment of the new books from the publishers, and they will go into use at the beginning of the next term in September, Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education, announced yesterday.

Known as "High Roads to Reading," the series consists of a set of six new readers for the first six grades in the elementary schools, and an accompanying set of teachers' manuals. In the primary and first grade there is also an accompanying seat-work book for use by the child, and for use in the same classroom are sets of fifteen wall-charts.

The readers come in the free textbook class, and their installation means the discarding of the system of readers previously used in the same grades. It was stated yesterday that for the first year the new series will be used only in city schools throughout British Columbia, but at the commencement of the September term in 1935, by which time the existing supply of old readers will be exhausted, the new series will also go into use in the rural schools.

Parent-teacher associations in the four Western Provinces have for years been urging some move in the direction of making uniform the educational system in the schools, maintaining that under the present system children moving from one province to another are at a distinct disadvantage. With the adoption of uniform readers, the matter of grading a child from any other part of Western Canada will be practically automatic, depending on the reader he has been using.

The new series was prepared as the result of a conference between specially appointed educational representatives of the four provinces. A list of the mutually agreed-upon requirements was drawn up and submitted to various publishing houses, and eventually Macmillan and Ryerson, joining for the purpose, and Gage and Nelson were entrusted with the work.

The publications are the very latest word in teaching methods, and this particular set will be used for the next ten years in the schools of the four Western Provinces.

BY B.C. TEACHERS

A striking feature of the series is that the readers, teachers' manuals, seat-work books, and charts for use in the primary grades have all been written by British Columbia teachers. Miss E. Roy and Miss H. Roy of Vancouver; P. H. Sheffield, Inspector at Nelson; and Miss L. G. Bollett, of Vancouver.

Particularly flattering to Victoria is the fact that Miss Cynthia Clayton, a gifted young local artist, was delegated to illustrate the seat-work books for the primer and first-grade classes. Her work is spirited, terse, and most apt, and is almost certainly destined to prove popular with the little pupils. The seat-work book is, of course, an innovation.

ANOTHER PARTY GONE TO SOOKE

Twelve Mothers and Thirty-Four Children Installed at Sunshine Camp

Twelve mothers and thirty-four children left for Sunshine Camp, Sasenoc, Sooke, yesterday, making the fourth group of the season. If funds are forthcoming, there will be one more party of mothers and children and one of "teen-age girls."

The Friendly Help Welfare, which does the necessary investigations and sees to the medical examinations of the applicants, are most anxious that the camp should be run to capacity for the remainder of the season, so many of their clients are in need of just the sort of help the camp can give them.

By means of the most rigid economy, the budget for the season has been kept to the lowest possible figure, compatible with the supplying of fresh vegetables, milk, butter, and so on, and, with the exception of a permanent staff of three, camp mother, cook and sports director, the necessary supervision of the children is done by voluntary workers.

BIG LARDER

Some idea of the quantities of food used may be of interest. Six gallons of milk are used daily, forty-five pounds of butter weekly, and between sixty-five and seventy pounds of meat a week. There are two fresh vegetables a day, and there is extra milk for the children and mothers who need it. There is absolutely no waste, and the gain in weight at the end of the fortnight is most gratifying.

Most of the campers are facing serious health problems, and the two weeks in the fresh country air, with plenty of plain, wholesome food and milk, transform the tired, listless little ones into brown, lively youngsters, full of fun and life.

In the party which returned to Victoria yesterday were several mothers who had been sent to Camp Sunshine following illness. They were different people to the weary, discouraged women who left the city. One frail, little woman, complimented on her gain in weight and newly-acquired coat of tan, asked to have her gain in weight written down so she could bring it in to her people. "I feel so much better, in my mind as well as in my body. Nothing seems so much trouble any more," she told the camp mother gratefully.

SPLENDID STAFF

The camp committee are particularly fortunate in the permanent staff this year, as the camp mother is a trained nurse with overseas experience and the cook is also a dietitian. Nothing is too much trouble if it makes for the happiness and welfare of the campers.

Under the direction of the sports director, the children were given a puppet show before coming into the city, and a party was arranged for the mothers on Monday evening. A treat is arranged for each party during their stay and everything possible is done to make the holiday a completely happy time. A social worker remarked recently on the greatly changed attitude toward their problems of those mothers and children who had been to Camp Sunshine.

Are the mothers and children who are now eagerly awaiting their turn at camp to be disappointed? That rests with the citizens as a whole. Funds are urgently needed, and should be sent to Fred Landsberg, 1008 Broad Street.

Grange Acquires Additional Unit

W. L. Gilbert, president of Grange Mines, Limited, has returned from San Francisco, where he purchased additional equipment for the stepping of the mill at the property near Kelly Creek station on the Pacific Great Eastern. This machinery will be installed immediately.

The mill is now under the supervision of E. R. Brown, who was formerly with Hollinger Mines. The mill is operating two shifts a day on ore taken from the shaft, with mill heads averaging 43 oz. gold and concentrates averaging 3.25 ozs.

Twelve Days That Wrecked a World

This is the eleventh of a series of twelve day-by-day accounts of the beginning of the World War, twenty years ago, by Colonel Frederick Palmer, war correspondent and author.

(By COLONEL FREDERICK PALMER) (Copyright, 1934, by The North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

Front page, second, third, fourth, and onward, the black headlines of the morning of August 2, 1914, which came on Sunday, took up the massive march from the late evening editions.

Four major powers already were irretrievably committed to war. Italy had declared herself neutral. Britain's decision, which still hung in the balance.

Nobody knew. The British Cabinet did not know yet. But there had been a change of view by Lloyd George, if not of his pacific followers. He was no longer in the mood to make a public appeal to the people to keep out of the Asquith-Grey faction continued its course.

For now it was known publicly that the movement of the green uniforms was westward toward the French frontier. Confirmatory word came at noon, when a German ad-

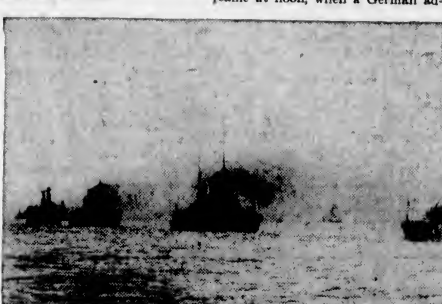

broken, but a greater rupture was in prospect if the British Empire entered the war.

The British waited today, not for the news from Berlin, Paris, Vienna and St. Petersburg, but from Downing Street, where the British Cabinet was in session, while the Cabinet waited on further dispatches. City people turned to the bulletin boards. Country people asked the news at the church door and then joined the group at the local telegraph office. Yoke asked squire if he thought England would go in, and the squire looked wise, when he knew no more about it than the yokel.

CABINET SILENT

Nobody knew. The British Cabinet did not know yet. But there had been a change of view by Lloyd George, if not of his pacific followers. He was no longer in the mood to make a public appeal to the people to keep out of the Asquith-Grey faction continued its course.

BRITAIN'S PROTECTION AND THREAT
The Might of the British Navy, Represented Here by the Cruiser Squadron, Suggested Caution to the German High Command, Which Urged British Neutrality Up to the Last Minute.

World wonder centred on what surprises the army staffs would spring out of this day when hell's domain spread over the earth. There had been a surprise for the German general staff building the previous afternoon looking for contracts for uniforms.

The German reservist found that a new green uniform, which had been secretly made and stored, was waiting for him at the barracks. In his war suit of green, which melted into the landscape, he would go against the Frenchman in blue blouse and bright red trousers, which helped to lower the enemy's aim when the tendency is to shoot high.

TOURISTS HURRY HOME

And on that Sunday, at the height of the travel season in midsummer, the scattered army of neutral spectators, the thousands on the continent, were convinced that "See Home First" was a good gospel. From the millionaire to the school teacher on an agency tour, their role had changed from courteous tourists to beleaguered exiles. The hotel waiter or porter who had been so attentively unctuous for tips was off to the front, his fate conscripted into the crucible of his nation's.

Europe, seeing red, could not see tourists at all. At the railroad stations they found that all trains were troop trains. No matter how big his letter of credit or how important he was in his home town, the old man now was just an outsider in other people's way. His hired car had been taken by the Government and his chauffeur called to the colors. Or, if he had his own car and home chauffeur, he was barred at the frontier. Where was his permit? The passport, which still endures in keeping memory of the World War fresh, had begun.

German and French ships on which tourists had booked sailings had been requisitioned. The war had everything human and material on the continent, from the Atlantic to the Urals and from the North and Baltic Seas to the Alps, in its urgent grip of steel.

GET TO ENGLAND!

But England was not in—not yet. Get to England somehow; England had ships which would take you home. In England, that Sunday, every statesman, every official, every officer of the army and navy missed the golf game or the day at the seashore he had planned for the weekend. British business men, large and small, breathed relief over the Government's decree of mobilization on bills and obligations. Business relations with the continent were broken, but a greater rupture was in prospect if the British Empire entered the war.

The British waited today, not for the news from Berlin, Paris, Vienna and St. Petersburg, but from Downing Street, where the British Cabinet was in session, while the Cabinet waited on further dispatches. City people turned to the bulletin boards. Country people asked the news at the church door and then joined the group at the local telegraph office. Canceled Ball Games Will Be Played Tonight

Softball fixtures rained out yesterday evening will be played tonight, and games scheduled for this evening will be played on Friday, with league play-offs having the preference over knockout fixtures. President Ernie Stock, of the Lower Island Softball Association, announced last night.

By order of the board, Esquimalt Dockers will play James Island on Friday evening at Bullen's Park, with Baylis in charge. If James Island wins it will mean a play-off between the Islanders, Caledonians and the Composites for second and third place in the "B" Section standings, but if the Dockers come through to victory James Island will be out of the running for the championship. This will leave the Caledonians and the Composites to play for the right to meet Brunson's Boys in the sectional final.

Supervisor of Art In London Schools Addresses Teachers

Miss Marion Richardson, Visiting Canada for Canadian National Gallery, Gives First of Three Lectures at High School

"CHILDREN'S art is the first direct way of getting an understanding of adult or mature art. This is one of the reasons why we should be at pains to study children's art. I believe if people are interested in art at all, they will do well to study it from its simple beginnings as seen in the work of children, peasants, and primitives rather than in the elaborate finished products of trained adults," said Miss Marion Richardson, supervisor of art in the London County Council schools, in the course of her illustrated lecture to a big audience of Summer School students at Victoria High School, yesterday.

Here in the course of a Dominion-wide tour that she is taking under the auspices of the Canadian National Gallery, Miss Richardson is to give two more lectures, both free and open to the public, one on "The Teaching of Picture Making," to be at the High School at 10 o'clock this morning, and the third lecture to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock on "The Making of Patterns."

The adult cubs himself off from art by making it too complex than he becomes too interested and over-pressed by the skill implied in art, and in so doing misses the emotional message that exists in art," she told her audience.

School handbooks, until recently had missed the point of the object of teaching art in the schools. Miss Richardson, to illustrate this view, quoted from a handbook first published in 1905. "This same handbook devoted just ten times the space to defining the aims of art instruction. In the earlier edition the principle had been laid down that the aim of teaching drawing was to enable the scholar to represent accurately any given object, by copying, or faithful imitation, 'attained only after long and continuous practice.' The 1927 edition, on the other hand, held that the object of teaching art was to provide the child with a means of expression and a means of reproduction. The end of art was no longer mere imitation or accurate representation of an object. The teaching of drawing, she said, still presented great problems: the solution of which could only be found in a sympathetic study of the child's spontaneous efforts to draw. More often than not teaching tended to stultify rather than develop this spontaneity.

ART CREATIVE
"Art is a creative thing and absolutely necessary to the human soul," Miss Richardson asserted.

GERMAN PRESIDENT IS TAKEN BY DEATH
and to receiving the credentials of newly-appointed chiefs of foreign missions, the latter being invariably astonished at the old field marshal's apparently unshakable vigor.

VERY RELIGIOUS
His deep religious convictions often found expression in the necessarily restricted part he played in the struggle of the churches against Naziism.

He profoundly regretted these quarrels and sent the Luther Memorial Convention, at Wittenberg, a message expressing hope that "reaffirmation of the Christian spirit would make for unity."

He observed his eighty-sixth birthday anniversary, last October, in the fashion dearest to his heart, as a patriot surrounded by those dearest to him in the peace and quiet of his country estate.

Intimate friends said later that it was the happiest birthday the President had celebrated in many years. For at least, he saw the Fatherland united as it never had been before or since the war, and universal military training was practically restored, Germany once more a marching nation, and the Reichwehr once more occupied a place of honor in the nation's life.

STUCK TO POST
Rumors that Von Hindenburg intended to resign in favor of a restoration of the monarchy were soon stillied by the growing aversion of the Nazis to a return of the old system.

Came Christmas and New Year, with the usual old German home celebrations and a reception for diplomats at the President's Palace, a strenuous affair for a man of his age, involving much handshaking and innumerable congratulations.

The adage "old soldiers never die" seemed to have a definite substantiation in Von Hindenburg, who gave no sign of the alternative "fading away" except as it affected his official position of chief of the state, as Chancellor Hitler took over more duties.

In June of this year more serious reports from Neudeck caused people to scan pictures in the newspapers with closer attention.

EXPLAINED "FURGE"
Again the erect figure of the President, leaning lightly on a cane, was seen as he bade farewell to Hitler, who had reported on his visit to Premier Mussolini. Nothing could be said to break the "sturdy German oak."

Once more Hitler visited him to report on his "purg" of the Nazi party on June 30. Persons who saw the President said he still talked with undiminished vigor.

It was thought with regular care under physicians he was headed for the century, or at all events easily would pass into the nineties.

despite his old trouble which caused him greater difficulty in walking.

It was only natural, perhaps, that some began to think the President had taken rejuvenation treatments—a rumor which was promptly denied by his personal adjutant.

Then with startling suddenness came official bulletins telling of his critical illness.

People stopped dead in the streets and stared at newspapers—was it possible, they seemed to be thinking, that Von Hindenburg could die?

ALWAYS WARRIOR

Paul Ludwig Hans Anton von Beneckendorff und von Hindenburg was born at Posen, formerly in Prussia, now Poznan in Poland, October 2, 1847, the son of a Prussian army officer and of a family most of whose sons had for more than 300 years adopted a military career.

Young Paul went to the army as a matter of course, and when at thirty-two he received his commission as a captain on the general staff, he married Gertrud von Sperling, a girl of eighteen. The union was a happy one, the youthful bride becoming an ideal officer's wife. She died in 1921. A son, Oscar, and two daughters, Jrmengard and Annemarie, were born to them. Oscar also entered the army, and both daughters married officers. President von Hindenburg was a grandfather many times over.

CABINET IN SESSION

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—The Reichministers were called together at 10 o'clock last night, possibly to discuss the reported plans of the Chancellor to assume also the Presidency, if the office became vacant.

Hours afterward, no word had come from the field marshal's estate at Neudeck, where physicians watched and waited. Once during the early evening the venerable, eighty-six-year-old, idol of Germany's millions was reported in the death agony, but, rallied. Attending physicians said he might live another day or more.

The Chancellor paid a farewell visit to the dying hero of Germany, at his East Prussian estate, and hastened back to Berlin for the Cabinet meeting, reporting Von Hindenburg's condition was serious, but his mind still functioned perfectly.

The Chancellery and official news agencies declined to give details of the Cabinet session. It was said to have lasted until the early morning hours.

Concern over Von Hindenburg's condition pushed into the background all other considerations in Germany.

OTHER MATTERS FORGOTTEN
The Austrian question, the squabble with Italy over the Austrian outbreaks, and the economic worries of the Reich were forgotten for the time being.

Interest extended beyond the President's health to the question of just how Hitler would proceed to legalize his reported plans to become President and Chancellor. Those who know his mind believe he was more severely hurt.

WESTPORT, N.Y., Aug. 1 (AP).—Swearing his automobile to avoid hitting a truck, United States Senator Robert F. Wagner was injured when the machine plunged off an Adirondack mountain highway and into a brook near here, today.

Representative Annin S. Prall, of Staten Island, en route with Senator Wagner to a fishing camp in Quebec, was more severely hurt.

Up-Country Wedding Is Of Interest

Margaret Fay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCall, and Mr. Richard E. Cope, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Cope, of Kelowna, were the principals in a pretty wedding, on Saturday evening, July 28, at the home of the bride's parents, 369 St. Paul Street, Kamloops, Rev. Gardner Dickie officiating. The ceremony took place under a sea-green and white arch, centred with a large white wedding bell, in a floral setting of flame-colored gladioli, banked with sweet peas in all the pastel shades.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of aqua-green leaf patterned lace, with a turban to match. Her bouquet was of Tallman roses and white sweet peas, tied with white tulle. She was attended by her younger sister, Miss Dorothy McCall, who wore a cream net frock over a primrose silk foundation, with a cream mohair picture hat, and she carried mauve sweet peas and rose carnations, tied with rose-colored tulle. Mr. C. Fulford was best man. Miss Helen Ellis played the wedding music, and while the register was being signed, Miss

Lillian Potter sang, "I Love You Truly."

WEDDING RECEPTION

The bride's mother, in a brown printed ensemble, received the guests, assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a white Canton crepe ensemble. Little Jeanie Potter opened the door to the visitors. The bride's table was centred by a large white tulle and satin streamers. Rose sweet peas, in silver vases, and matching tapers, completed the charming color effect. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Ann Wolf, Mrs. Hugh Pattinson and Misses Lois Hoover, Lillian Potter, Peggy Harper, Frances Smith and Wynn Harper. The groom's gift to the bride was a topaz and white compact; to the best man, a cigarette case, and to the pianist and soloist, attractive compacts.

LEAVE FOR MOTOR TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Cope left for a motor trip in the Okanagan and to the Coast cities, the bride traveling in a smart blue and white printed ensemble, trimmed with navy blue taffeta and a hat to match. Among the many presents was a silver service from Miller, Court and staff, of which the groom is a member. The bride was formerly a teacher on the staff of the Lloyd George School, in Kamloops.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. C. W. Cope, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cope, of Kelowna; Mrs. Ann Wolf, of Penikese; Mrs. Hugh Pattinson, of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Donaldson, of Revelstoke; and Mr. C. Fulford, of Vernon. The bride has many relatives and friends in Victoria.

PARIS STYLES

By MARY KNIGHT
United Press Staff Correspondent.
PARIS (UP).—To be slip-shod in the Paris manner is something of an art. Slips are now made and sold almost exclusively with a definite outfit—not bought singly to wear with just any dress, suit or ensemble.

Each slip in the smart wardrobe of today follows the lines of the outfit it is made to be worn with, and this accounts for the perfect fit of the dress. There are no superfluous wrinkles or lines beneath the frock, and it never hangs just a little below or above the skirt hem to throw the whole effect out of gear.

Surprising as it may seem, the modern slip is having less and less lace trimming, except for the distinctly Summer dresses of organdie and chiffon when it is often allowed to show through and thereby become an enhancement for the ensemble.

Embroidery and cut-out work are becoming more and more important on underwear in general, and Italian work—applique effects and stenciled designs, are also very popular.

There is little change in color preferences for lingerie—pink is ever the first choice, in the palest shades, and then white. Blue is being shown a great deal, but not always bought. Grey has come in recently with a number of smart supporters, and a pale cream and barely visible orchid are good.

TODAY'S FASHION TIP
Underwear is tailored, form-fitting and each slip accompanies a specific frock. Lace diminishing; embroidery increasing.

FAIR CONTINUED

The community fair held yesterday, in the Burnside Hall, Strawberry Vale, will be continued this afternoon and evening.

Eurydice Club Benefits From Afternoon Tea

To assist the Eurydice Art Club with its next musical production, Mrs. S. W. Barclay was hostess at a tea yesterday afternoon at her home, 1220 Oxford Street. Mrs. W. B. McKicking, president of the club, assisted the hostess in receiving the guests.

The drawing-room was lovely with Summer flowers and the tea table was arranged with flowers and yellow tapers. Assisting Mrs. Barclay in serving was Miss Dorothy McKicking. An enjoyable programme was given by Miss Ailsa Barclay and Miss Margaret Lennox sang several solos. Recitations were given by little Freda Natrass and piano numbers by Miss Kay Hamilton. The silver tray was won by Mrs. W. B. Barclay, the cake by Mrs. Harry Silver and the plant by Mrs. A. Burns.

The specially invited guests were Mrs. J. D. Hunter, Mrs. J. L. Thompson, Mrs. A. MacCrimmon, Mrs. F. Natrass, Mrs. J. Hunter, Mrs. Robert McVie, Mrs. M. S. Dunnett, Mrs. E. R. Coates, Mrs. A. B. Wedding Is Celebrated At Oak Bay

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, Rev. Canon Nunn officiating, when Elizabeth, daughter of Mrs. E. C. Turner, of 1845 Quamichan Street, and of the late Mr. Turner, became the bride of Mr. Robert Duke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Duke, of Patricia Bay.

Accompanied to the church by Mr. Herbert E. Pott and given in marriage by her mother, the bride was a lovely picture in her wedding gown of white embroidered Indian silk, which had been worn by her mother on the occasion of her marriage. Her veil was of beautiful old Honiton lace, and had been lent to the bride by Mrs. Norman, a friend of the groom's family. The bride's bouquet was of talliesman roses and maidenhair fern.

Miss Molly Turner, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, wearing a charming frock of flowered nylon in shades of blue, with which she wore a black picture hat and carried a bouquet of pastel shaded sweet peas. The best man was Mr. Robert Phillips.

RECEPTION HELD

After the service a reception, attended by intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom, was held at the home of the bride's mother, where the young couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Turner and the groom's father, his mother being at present on a visit to England. Later in the afternoon the bride and groom left for the Mainland, the bride traveling in a smart suit of brown and yellow tweed and hat to match. On their return to Victoria they will make their home at Cadboro Bay.

Among the many beautiful gifts received was a picture from the bride's form pupils at St. Margaret's School, of which she has been a member of the teaching staff for three years, having had charge of the Junior School.

Indoor Party Is Successful

Despite the weather, a most successful party was held yesterday afternoon by the City Temple Ladies' Auxiliary, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Holt, 1024 McGregor Street, when the affair was held indoors. There were many amusements, contests and entertainments. Rev. Dr. W. J. Thompson, pastor, opened the party.

Tea was served at individual tables, arranged with sweet peas and zinnias. Mrs. T. Clarke was in charge of the tea arrangements and general convenor was Mrs. Holt. There were stalls of home cooking and candy, and many guests. Pupils of the Italian School of Music and Dancing furnished the following programme: Umbrella dance, Elsie Robertson, Laura Peaker and Lorna Marie Atfield; dolly dance, Muriel Marshall; acrobatic dance, Laura Peaker; clown dance, Lorna Marie Atfield; and studio dance, Elsie Robertson, Lorna Marie Atfield and Laura Peaker. Evelyn Holt was the accompanist.

Silver Wedding

A surprise was held on Tuesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Speller, Carey Road, when a number of old friends gathered to extend their congratulations on the occasion of their silver wedding. The gifts were concealed in a pretty basket decorated in colors of pink and green and were presented to the guests of honor by little Robina James. Music and singing were enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Miss Florence McKinnon, Marie Little, Muriel Carter, Ruth Knight, Gladys Clare and Ethyl Speller. 3. The coats should be fashioned from new, FRESH, best quality skins. Come in and let us explain.
4. Workmanship should be thorough, EXPERT . . . to assure smartness, long service and wear.
5. Linings should be of rich, durable silk.

Barbers who take pride in their away when they see the utterly nonsensical way it is practiced in "The Meanest Gal in Town," R.K.O.-

Radio Pictures' comedy riot, featuring an all-star cast of funsters, which opens at the Playhouse Theatre.

In a number of hilarious sequences
El Brendel and James Gleason appear as a couple of barbers who manage to get into each other's hair as often as they get into that of their patrons. Pert Kelton has excellent opportunities to display her hoydenish comedy flair as the alluring and sometimes rowdy manicurist, while Zasu Pitts as Brendel's sweetheart of ten years' standing, and Skeets Gallagher in the role of a wise-cracking traveling salesman, complete the notable array of laugh talent.

Boasting elaborate sets, a thrilling episode in the air and a story with a strong dramatic plot, Ann Harding's "The Right to Romance," the added attraction, is said to be one of the great pictures of the season.
Miss Harding plays the part of a plastic surgeon who has grown tired of wealth and fame and seeks excitement and romance at a coast play resort.

EMPIRE Among the featured
THEATRE acts in the Casanova Revue, the current attraction on the Empire Theatre stage, are Di Gaetano Dancers, a society of beautiful girls in a whirlwind of novel dances that combine grace and rhythm to an extraordinary degree. Phil Rich is the leader of the all-star troupe, fresh from triumph through their transcontinental tour. Earl Scholl, who was the featured tenor in "Student Prince," presents many beautiful song numbers.

CAPITOL "Wild Gold," Fox Film's THEATRE latest release which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday, will be shown today and tomorrow only. The film capitalizes on the present day gold situation and presents a modern gold rush that has all the fascination, drama, comedy and romance of the roaring forties. Although the screen play is up to the minute, it makes the most of the picturesque action and glamour of the days of '49.

Columbia Offers
Comedy-Romance

If it's genuine comedy you like in a picture, you'll find it in "Looking for Trouble," which stars Spencer Tracy and Jack Oakie as the latest team of film funsters and is the current attraction at the Columbia Theatre beginning today.

And there's also some wildly
hilarious adventure in this 20th Century production. Their love affairs with Constance Cummings and Arline Judge, a pair of wise-cracking telephone girls, provide some of the gayest sequences in this thrilling story.

However, the film has its serious moments too, with one of the girls being accused of a murder, another caught in the ruins of the earthquake at Long Beach, California, and both boys sharing their adventures.

Tim McCoy comes as the added attraction today in Columbia's "Silent Men," a rip-roaring Western, with Florence Britton, Wheeler Oak-man, Matthew Betz and William V.
Mong in the cast.

ARRANGE DETAILS
FOR COMOX FAIR

Prize List Nearly Ready—Making Arrangements for Sports Programme and Dance

COURTENAY, Aug. 1.—The last touches were added to the Fall Fair prize list, which is to be out of the printer's hands in few days, at a meeting of directors of the Agricultural Association on Tuesday night.
Jim Casanave and Bert Grieve are consulting other horsemen in the district to draw up the sports programme for fair day, so that it can be included in the fair book. The association has contributed $75 towards the prizes.

Mr. Hurford, reporting for the grounds committee, said that there was a possibility that the city might move the stock buildings to a new location, nearer the Sandwick corner of the grounds. It is hoped that the city will give the buildings
a much-needed coat of paint before fair day.

President Plumbly reported that,
in company with the secretary, he had interviewed the Courtenay City Council on Tuesday night, and that the council had granted $25 towards the district agricultural exhibition.

A report for the prize list committee, from the secretary showed that the advertisements had come in satisfactorily.

Mrs. Plumbly and Mrs. Bullock offered to operate a "white elephant" stall at the fair for the benefit of the association, and the offer was gratefully accepted.

Messrs Plumbly and Grieve were appointed a special committee to make arrangements for the Fall Fair dance.

Save the Pieces

Beach hats are so smart and fashionable, and so really necessary to the woman who prefers to look like something other than an old shoe when beach days are over, that every woman whose Summer days are spent in a beach cottage or hotel should have a supply of fashionable and protective hats.

They need not be expensive. Just hunt up your old broad-brimmed hats of whatever year they may be,
and transform them into something new, after the manner of these illustrations.

An old Leghorn of many seasons ago winds a bit of bright plaid gingham about its crown and through slits in the side, tying prettily under the chin. If you are the quail type you'll like that style no matter how modern your beach suit may be.

Just any old straw or linen hat, scaloped about the edges and turned abruptly off the face in cowboy style, makes the beach hat at the upper left. The old-fashioned deep crown was cut off, and a navy, red or brown linen crown, shallower and more modern, was substituted.

The big dressy hat, perhaps from a wedding of many seasons ago, cuts off its French flowers and large crown, and replaces the latter with polka dotted percale or linen.
Streamers are added, and you have the big sun hat at the right.

Crownless is the next big hat at the left. About an inch of the old crown is left to hold the hat in place of the crown and, lo, another hat.

Your old Panama, which hasn't much trim may be made to do duty by adding a wide flange of any colored material you like, as shown at the lower right. With a bit of linen, and almost any old hat, you can see that a beach hat is possible. You can even have dozens of them to match your beach dresses if your attic stores hats.

ORGAN MUSIC
MUCH ENJOYED

Stanley Bulley, at Christ Church Cathedral, Tells
About Composers

Continuing his interesting Summer series of organ lecture-recitals,
Stanley Bulley, last night, at Christ Church Cathedral, traversed the history of church organ music in England, from its shadowy beginnings in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, to the present time. As usual the lecture matter was illustrated with organ numbers.

Very few people realize that the English Church has the longest unbroken and unrivaled music library of all the churches in the world, extending, in continuity, from the twelfth and thirteenth centuries to the present day. Mr. Bulley informed his listeners. The standard of church music had varied considerably, but every generation, from the fourteenth century, had its genius, and not another country in the world could boast such a continuous collection of music of good quality as had come from the English composers during this time.

Ernest Newman, the great contemporary critic, had pointed out that Germany, although by many considered one of the most musical countries in the world, had not today a first-class singer, composer, pianist, conductor or instrumentalist of any kind. England, on the other hand, although, perhaps, not leading the world, held her own, he said.

The older English composers of organ music had been overlooked, owing probably to the necessarily slight texture of the music in the absence in that day of pedal organs, and the very limited number of stops, and other points that make it possible to get variety of tone. The tonality of the old composers also sounded strange to modern ears.

The earlier English organ music was illustrated by John Bull's "Choral Prelude," a sixteenth century composition, Mr. Bulley noting at the same time that to this composer some people attributed the tune of the British National Anthem.
Other numbers played during the evening included Orlando Gibbons'
"Voluntary in A Minor," Dr. John Bull's "Toccata for Double Organ," Purcell's "Two Trumpet Tunes and Air," Bolland's "Introduction and Toccata," and the "Choral Song and Pique" by Samuel Sebastian Wesley.

This series of Summer recitals at the Cathedral will conclude next Wednesday evening.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED TO WATCH GAMES OPENING

Paul Rowe Speeds To Fine Victory In Feature Event

Y.M.C.A. Sprint Star Captures 220 at Navy Track and Field Meet—Caldwell Wins 880 and Mile Races—Rain Interferes With Crowd

Staged on a rain-soaked field and during a continuous downpour, yesterday's Navy Week track and field meet at Macdonald Park was robbed of the success of which it was deserving by the unwelcome visit of Jupiter Pluvius. However, between 300 and 400 Victorians braved the inclement weather, and stood for more than two hours watching track and field stars from H.M.S. Norfolk, H.M.C.S. Skeena, H.M.C.S. Vancouver, Royal Canadian Naval Barracks, Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry, and last, but by no means least, members of Archie McKinnon's Y.M.C.A. team vie for honors on Victoria's newest and finest playing field.

The event was carded to provide athletic entertainment for officers and ratings of H.M.S. Norfolk and members of the Royal Canadian Navy, and also to mark the official opening of Macdonald Park, the latest addition to this city's already large number of playing fields, by Mayor David Leeming.

Favored by large fields, the majority of the events provided keen competition and close and exciting finishes, and while the programme was somewhat curtailed on account of the weather, there was a long list of events for those spectators who stayed with the "ship."

ROWE IN VICTORY
Running in the feature event, the 220-yard dash, which attracted the cream of sprint races, Paul Rowe, a member of Archie McKinnon's Y.M.C.A. squad, flashed to the tape, just in front of Owen Bentley, Dick Surphiss, high school champion, and a member of the "Y" squad, was a close third. Rowe, running close to the leaders all of the way, closed with a burst of speed in a great finish.

The Y.M.C.A.'s colors were carried to victory in the 440-yard race, in competition with a team from the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry, from Work Point Barracks. The "Y" boys showed a marked superiority over the navy, and Paul Rowe, running the last 220 yards for the winners, finished about 100 yards in front of the last Princess Pals' runner.

CALDWELL STARS
Dick Caldwell, distance runner from H.M.C.S. Skeena, won the 880 and the mile event. The dual winner ran a well-planned race and with plenty in reserve to sprint to the tape in the last fifty yards.

H.M.S. Norfolk's well-drilled tug-of-war team carried off the honors in this event, defeating the Royal Canadian Naval Barracks squad in the preliminary round, and then coming back and pulling a combined H.M.C.S. Vancouver and H.M.C.S. Skeena team in the final.

Breasting the tape first in front of W. Matthews, of H.M.C.S. Skeena, J. Hall, H.M.C.S. Vancouver, carried off first place in the 440-yard race. G. Banfield, H.M.C.S. Skeena, was third.

WINS OBSTACLE RACE
Stoker Manley, H.M.S. Norfolk, captured the hearts of the spectators in winning the obstacle race, one of the toughest events on the programme. The race called for the competitors to crawl under a large net and tarpaulin, climb up a steep board standing at an angle of about forty-five degrees, and finish up by wearing feminine garb to the tape. The event was the cause of much laughter for the fans, but it was a tried field of competitors that literally crawled to the finishing line.

Victoria Police tug-of-war team pulled the Royal Canadian Naval squad in straight falls, in an exhibition affair.

AGGREGATE WINNER
W. Matthews, H.M.C.S. Skeena, won the Maynard Aggregate Cup, open for competition among all Royal Navy and Royal Canadian Naval officers and ratings, while Boy Paul, a shipmate, copped the Chief and P.O.'s Naden Aggregate Trophy.

During the meet the band of H.M.S. Norfolk rendered many fine selections, which were much appreciated by the crowd.

Following the meet, the prizes were presented by Mrs. Blagrove, wife of Capt. H. E. C. Blagrove, of H.M.S. Norfolk.

Officials in charge of the meet follow: Referee, Commander J. E. W. Oland, D.S.C., R.C.N.; Judges, track events, Lieut. Commander B. F. Johnson, R.N.; Lieut. Commander V. S. HOPES SLIM OF BEATING OLD COUNTRY

American Tennis Players State That England Will Be Hard to Dethrone

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer.

LONDON, Aug. 1 (CP).—Take it from the United States Davis Cup team, which sails for home on Saturday empty handed, the chances of any nation taking the international tennis trophy away from the English in the next few years are very slim.

A poll of Sidney R. Wood, Jr., Frank X. Shields, George M. Lott, Jr., and Lester Rollo Stoen, the American quartette, which played grand tennis, but could win only one match against the British in the challenge round failed to reveal even a glimmer of a hope that the present United States crop of players can turn the trick.

The problem slimmered down to one question: "How are you going to beat that fellow Fred Perry?"

Shields interjected the remark that he'd "like to see the man who can beat Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin when he's playing for that cup."

Matthews was not made any more cheerful when Lott, the "Rock" of Gibraltar, of the last three teams, said he was through with cup play. But in the next breath he said he might be back.

"Maybe I'll go into training for both single and doubles," he said. "I have a hunch I can at least beat Austin." (Something no other American Cup player has been able to do in the last three years of cup competition.)

SEATTLE GOLF ACE ADVANCES
Scotty Campbell Turns In Two Fine Wins in Public Links Tourney

SOUTH PARK, PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1 (AP).—Turning back two opponents by decisive margins, Albert "Scotty" Campbell, the young Seattle golfer, today advanced with fifteen fellow public links golfers into the third round of championship play, in a day of torrid play that saw two former champions blasted out of the running.

Campbell, accompanying his ever-present and helpful caddy, first eliminated Mike Oestone, of Newark, N.J., and then administered the same treatment to Byron Hunt, of Columbus, Ohio. Both went down by the same score, 5 and 3.

Karl Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, only man ever to win the public links championship three times, lost decisively in the third round to the smooth-stroking Lorraine Young, of San Antonio, Tex., 6 and 5. Bob Miller, of Jacksonville, Fla., 1932 title-holder, failed to survive the first round, losing in the biggest upset of the day to J.C. Kewert, of Gary, Ind., 2 and 1.

CAMPBELL ON FORM
Intent on bagging another title to go along with his Canadian amateur crown, the twenty-year-old Campbell was always on top of his game, after getting away to a bad start with a seven on the first hole of the day.

The Scotsman and his caddy, Ralph "Curly" Whitely, twenty-five, who hitch-hiked here from Seattle, were well satisfied with the way things were going.

Jim Londos and George in Draw
BOSTON STADIUM, BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 1 (CP).—Jim Londos and Ed Don George wrestled to a draw in ninety minutes, here, tonight, in their second meeting for the world's heavyweight championship.

B.C. Golf Team to Leave for the East on Monday
VANCOUVER, Aug. 1 (CP).—Four British Columbia golf stars will leave here Monday, for Toronto, to take part in the Canadian Amateur golf tournament and the inter-provincial Willingdon Cup match.

Jack Matson and Bob Morrison, of Victoria, and Stan Leonard and R. L. "Dick" Moore, of Vancouver, will join the fifth member of the Coast contingent, Ken Black, who is already in the East for the Canadian Open.

Morrison, Leonard, Moore and Black will represent British Columbia in the inter-provincial team play.

Matson, non-playing team captain, will enter the amateur tournament with the four playing members.

Tug-of-War Teams Seen in Action

H.M.S. Norfolk's well-drilled tug-of-war squad, which carried off the honors at yesterday's track and field meet at Macdonald Park, is pictured above pulling the Royal Canadian Navy team. Just as the camera snapped the boys, the visiting British bluejackets are seen holding fast, while their friendly rivals of the Canadian service are trying to "take it away." To the left of the picture is seen Arthur Manson, judge of the field events.

MONS - Belgium
WHERE ENGLAND BEGAN AND ENDED HER PART IN THE WORLD WAR
Aug. 23, 1914 - Nov. 11, 1918

EXPLANATION FOR YESTERDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON
The Attack on the U.S.A.—On July 21, 1918, at about 10:30 a.m., the German submarine U-156 suddenly rose to the surface some two and a half miles off Orleans, Mass., on the southeastern elbow at Cape Cod, and sank the tug Perth Amboy and four barges by gunfire. Of the several hundred shells fired, a few landed in the American soil, barely missing some cottagers watching the fray. The sub also deliberately fired on the lifesavers from the Naugatuck Harbor Station as they pulled a boat alongside the sinking hulks.

There were sixteen men on the tug and ten on the four barges, a few of whom were wounded. The U-156 subsequently was lost in the great mine field laid across the North Sea.

The Demon Photographer—Adrian C. Duff, a newspaper photographer in New York, enlisted as a sergeant of the U.S. Signal Corps when America entered the World War. He soon became known as the "Camera Kid" or "Demon Photographer," for his intrepidity in taking pictures in the midst of bullets and shrapnel.

In July, 1918, at Chateau Thierry, Duff, who was unarmed except for a camera, suddenly came upon a camouflaged German machine gun nest. He walked over and, training his camera upon the frightened Germans, ordered them to put up their hands. The six Germans complied. Duff photographed them and then escorted the prisoners to the American lines.

Duff was promoted to Lieutenant. He died in an automobile accident in Brooklyn, March 7, 1920, when his car skidded on the ice of the pavement.

DOMINION'S SQUAD LOOKS IMPRESSIVE ON EVE OF MEETING

Canada's Contingent Going Through Strenuous Workouts in Preparation for Second British Empire Games—Millie Fizzell Taken Suddenly Ill and Is Under Doctor's Care

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Millie Fizzell, slender little Toronto sprinter, was taken suddenly ill today with a stomach ailment on the eve of the second British Empire Games. Her collapse during a workout at the Paddington Recreation Grounds caused great anxiety among team members and officials.

Sharp pains in the stomach were said by Miss Fizzell to be a reaction from an old operation. She was rushed from Paddington to the hotel where the girls' team is staying and examined by a doctor, who promised a diagnosis tomorrow. Meanwhile there was much flurry and excitement in Canada's feminine camp.

Miss Fizzell had been nominated to start in the 100-yard dash on Saturday.

Coach Alex Wilson, of the men's track division, reported every man in his charge in good shape. He is paying particular attention to the athletes who are billed to perform Saturday.

These include the sprinters, Bill Christie, of Toronto; Bert Pearson, of Hamilton; Alan Poole, of Kelowna, B.C., and Frankie Nickle, of Halifax. Preliminary heats, semi-finals and final of the 100-yard dash will be run Saturday. Jim Worrall, lanky Montreal hurdler, makes his chief bid in the 440-yard hurdles.

ADDITION TO START
Sam Richardson and Ray Cooper, of Toronto, and George Sutherland, of Calgary, will compete in the running hop, step and jump. Jerry Sampson, of Montreal, and Joe Addison, of Victoria, are scheduled for 880-yard heats. The final will be run Monday. British observers believed Phil Edwards, running for British Guiana, would win.

The only weight-throwing event of opening day is the discus. Bob Waters, of Vancouver, is Canada's chief entrant, but Sutherland and George Walla are likely to support his bid. Little Bob Rankine, of Preston, Ont., faces a fast field in the three mile.

The swimmers, under Alex Duff, of Toronto, have been training in the Wembley Pool every morning and afternoon since their arrival in England.

Canadian divers have impressed spectators as being likely point-winners.

Boxers and wrestlers have worked as hard as the rest. They take an early-morning run in Hyde Park before starting training at the Regent Polytechnic Gymnasium. The grapplers climb ropes, throw medicine balls and wrestle each other. Coach Frank Saxon said every man in his charge is nearing top condition.

Dennis White, boss of the boxers, has varied the training schedule with skipping, shadow boxing and real boxing. Ten-thirty has been the bedtime deadline in the camp of the ringsters.

ANNUAL GOLF MEET SLATED
Greenkeepers' Tournament Will Be Played at Macaulay's Point Course, September 25

Greenkeepers of Victoria's many fine golf courses will cast aside the worries of their daily labors, on Tuesday, September 25, to compete in the seventh annual greenkeepers' tournament at Macaulay's Point course.

The meet will be thirty-six holes for the greenkeepers' championship and handicap championship. J. Riddell, holder of both titles, will face plenty of stiff opposition in the coming tourney and will need to be on top of his game to repeat.

The interclub shield competition is also carded. Oak Bay annexed the honors last year and will be out to carry off the silverware in this year's meet.

Further details of the event, and the banquet and concert that follow, will be announced later.

Will Wager on Caliente Open
AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Aug. 1 (AP).—Parti-mutuel wagering on golf will be introduced for the first time in the annual Agua Caliente championship here January 31 to February 8, officials of the $6,000 open tournament announced today.

Ninety per cent of the money wagered will go to winning ticket holders, who may, as on horse racing, bet to win, place or show, or across the board on any competitor in the field. The remaining 10 per cent goes to the three players who turn in the lowest eighteen-hole cards of the day, on the basis of 5, 3 and 2 per cent. Bets will not be taken on the final seventy-two-hole results.

SOCCER fans who make their way to the Royal Athletic Park, this afternoon, should witness a good match between the eleven from H.M.S. Norfolk, visiting British cruiser, and the Royal Canadian Navy team. The fixture, which is for a trophy presented by the Naval Veterans Branch of the Canadian Legion here, will get under way at 3.30 o'clock. Very little is known of the strength of the visiting eleven, but there is every reason to believe that the British blue-jackets will provide stiff opposition for their friendly rivals of the Canadian service. Following the match, six-a-side competitions will be played.

Unconditional Release
CINCINNATI, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Enquirer today says that "at his own request, Bob O'Farrell has been given his unconditional release" by Cincinnati Reds.

O'Farrell was replaced last week by Charley "Chuck" Deth, former pitcher of Nashville Vols. The former Red leader was under contract for this year and next.

The Enquirer quotes O'Farrell as saying that "he is confident he will catch on with either New York Giants or Chicago Cubs."

NOTED STARS WILL START IN OPEN TOURNEY

Galaxy of Famous Golfers to Face Starter in Canadian Open Today

TORONTO, Aug. 1 (CP).—The Lakeview Golf Club's course today was crowded with golfing stars, who prepared their drives and putts for the opening of the Canadian open championship tomorrow.

With the exception of Joe Kirkwood, defending champion, and Olin and Mortie Dutra, all the United States threats were on the spot for the event.

Walter Hagen, the old master and winner of the title at Mississauga in 1931, went around the course with Andy Kay, Canadian professional; Gordon Taylor, Jr., amateur star; and Willie Klein, another United States professional. Gene Sarazen also limbered up.

Denamore Shute, another United States professional, who captured the British open last year, was the day's low scorer. He made an even par of 35 on the outgoing nine and then smashed par by coming home with 32 for a 67.

Julius Huot, Quebec's classy professional, returned a 70. Henry Cucl, of New York, had a 69 and Tommy Armour carded a 73. Scores of other United States players included Bill Mehlhorn's 72; Ed Dudley's 73; Herman Barron's 71 and Leo Diegels's 75.

WALKER READY FOR NEXT BOUT
Prepared for Fight With Young Corbett This Month—Can Make the Weight

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1 (AP).—Mickey Walker, once undisputed middleweight champion, now seeking to put in a priority claim to the title he quit defending three years ago, showed today he still can "make the weight."

The former Rumson Bulldog tested his weight on two scales. On one he weighed 160 pounds even, and on the other 161-2 pounds, a pound and a half over the limit.

Walker is training for a ten-round bout here, August 14, with Young Corbett, of Fresno. He has agreed to gamble whatever claim he thinks he has to the title in the fight. The New York Boxing Commission and the National Boxing Association long ago accepted Vince Dundee as middleweight champion.

Young Wife: "I want some lamb, please."
Butcher: "Yes, ma'am, which part?"
Young Wife: "Oh are part you eat mint sauce with."

Campbell Will Defend Title on Montreal Links
MONTREAL, Aug. 1 (CP).—Albert "Scotty" Campbell, of Seattle, last year's winner of the Canadian amateur golf championship, will defend his title in this year's tournament at Laval-Sur-Le-Lac, Que. His entry was received by wire, today. Ken Black, Shaughnessy Heights Country Club, Vancouver, who battled to the runner-up position with Campbell, last year, will be another contestant at Laval-Sur-Le-Lac.

Aussies Score Heavily Against Gloucestershire

BRISTOL, Aug. 1 (CP).—The touring Australians made a good start, today, in their match against the Gloucestershire County cricketers, batting first and running up 244 runs for a loss of only two wickets.

Captain W. H. Woodfull amassed 131 runs before he was defeated, and W. H. Ponsford, regular partner in the opening wicket, scored 54.

Junior Tennis King
HALIFAX, Aug. 1 (CP).—A tall, bespectacled high school boy, who came to live here from Fairfield, Maine, last Fall, was today undisputed monarch of junior Nova Scotia tennis players. Roy Lockhart is the new king.

Yesterday he cleaned up in the men's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. An unseeded player in the singles, he came from nowhere, met favorites in nearly every round, and did not lose a set in any match. Lockhart was centre for the Halifax Academy basketball team, which won the Nova Scotia championships last Winter.

B.C. TOURNEY RAINED OUT

Clay Court Championships Postponed—May Possibly Cancel Meet

VANCOUVER, Aug. 1 (CP).—Rain caused postponement of all play in the British Columbia clay court championships at the Jericho Tennis Club, today, and sent tournament officials into a huddle as to the probable fate of the provincial title hunt when continued showers were forecast.

With less than half the first-round matches played, officials decided to accept the offers of the Vancouver Lawn Tennis and B.C. Electric Tennis Clubs for use of their clay courts in an effort to catch up, providing the weather is favorable tomorrow.

Another day's postponement may possibly cause cancellation of the tournament due to the fact that the British Columbia grass court championships open at Victoria next Monday.

A BLOW-OUT IN THE MAKING MAY BE IN YOUR TIRE RIGHT NOW

HOW GOLDEN PLY TIRE SAVES MOTORISTS' LIVES

WHEN a blow-out does happen your fate is in the lap of the gods. In a split second your car slithers to one side of the road—into the ditch, over a cliff, or into the oncoming stream of traffic. And if you, your family or your friends come out of the crash without injury you're certainly lucky.

Today, unless you are protected, the danger from blow-outs is greater than ever before. Due to high-powered motors and the whirlwind revolutions of smaller modern wheels, the heat generated inside the tire is terrific. Rubber and fabric begin to separate. A tiny blister forms. As the friction increases the blister grows. A blow-out is the inevitable result.

PROTECTION AGAINST BLOW-OUTS
Goodrich engineers, a step ahead of the times, invented the Life-Saver Golden Ply. It is obtainable only in Goodrich Silvertowns. This new material resists intense heat. Rubber and fabric don't separate. Thus blisters don't form inside the tire. Blow-outs are prevented before they start.

PROVED 3 TIMES SAFER
Actual performance tests have proved the greater safety of Golden Ply Silvertowns. In test after test these tires were subjected to the most drastic punishment tires ever took. They were run at breakneck speeds hour after hour and day after day. Not one blow-out. Similar tires without the Life-Saver Golden Ply failed at one-third the distance the Golden Ply Silvertowns were run.

GREATER MILEAGE AT NO EXTRA COST
Not only will Golden Ply Silvertowns bring you and your family greater security—they will give you extra mileage too. For without the destructive effects of internal heat to weaken them, think of the months of extra mileage these rugged Silvertowns will give. And remember, you pay no price premium for this extra safety and mileage. Get a set of Goodrich Safety Silvertowns now, before your turn for a blow-out comes.

LOOK FOR THE MOUNTIE!
This sign is displayed by Goodrich dealers. It tells you where you can buy the Goodrich Safety Silvertown with Life-Saver Golden Ply. Drive in where you see the "Mountie."

Virginia Vane Says:

DOUBLE LOVE ENDS IN UNHAPPINESS FOR GAY DECEIVER

Dear Miss Vane: While visiting away from home, I have met and fallen in love with a boy who has asked me to marry him. I cannot marry him, as I am already engaged to someone else and for many reasons my fiancé is the one I must marry.

However, I can't get over my infatuation for the boy I've met here. We are together constantly and everybody knows how we feel about each other. Because of this, I think it is very unfair of him to flirt with other girls, as he sometimes does. It puts me in a humiliating position and hurts my pride. Also it makes me doubt his love. I know he and I must get along without each other some day, but don't you think if he really cared for me he would make me obviously his only love while I am still here?—Belle.

Supposing this temporary sweetheart did as you wished, Belle. Suppose he devoted himself so exclusively to you that all other girls were aware of his infatuation and consequently warned away from him—what would be the result so far as he was concerned?

Why, in a few weeks' time you would romp home to marry the man you're promised to, and your faithful and obedient slave would be left in his home town to mend his broken heart as best he could. The mending process would of course take some time, since it is always difficult for a man to find consolation with the damsel who has watched him being completely in love with someone else.

Don't you think you're a little selfish in demanding that in order to be your faithful cavalier for this brief interval, your admirer should give up other friendships—and should avoid interesting other girls in his charms? Don't forget he'll have to go right on living after you've left him. If you're at all kindly disposed toward the poor fellow let him make sure that he won't be left on the shelf when you're gone.

And now that we're on the subject of fair play—just how do you reconcile your principles of justice to the present situation? You're deceiving one man and planning to hurt another cruelly. You're left an unsuspecting fiancé behind you and you're arranging to leave a broken-hearted man very shortly. And the great burning problem which occupies your mind is how to avoid a situation which hurts your pride.

Does it occur to you that you're thinking altogether too much of yourself—and not enough of either of the two men? I'm afraid you will never know much real happiness if you treat love so lightly. You may have some exciting moments, you may know the zest of intrigue and the spice of danger—but you will never know peace and joy until you've learned how to love one man tenderly and deeply and faithfully.

For your own sake, try to straighten out your mind, and to give your heart to one or other of your heroes.

ECONOMICAL RECEIVES A SYMPATHETIC LETTER

Dear Miss Vane: Will you please publish this letter in your column for the man who signed himself "Economical."

Dear Mr. Economical: I have read your letter telling of your problem arising from the difference of opinion about finances between you and the girl you love. I myself am engaged to be married and neither my fiancé nor I at present have jobs, a fact which makes us especially appreciative of financial independence. We both feel much as you do. We have both enjoyed most of the benefits of wealth and so know the pleasures that these things bring as well as anyone. We feel very strongly, however, that caring only for the present and spending lavishly while we have the cash will not give us the peace of mind to permit our enjoying what we have. We are determined not to be parasites in our old age, and going without certain things now, in order to have future peace of mind guaranteed, is worth far more than luxuries that make one tremble for one's economic future. Besides, the sacrifice to save for a mutually desired end, can be fun, if both are good sports.

Don't fool yourself into thinking that your fiancé will change. People who are accustomed to self-indulgence and disregard of the future seldom about-face. Financial agreement is one of the most vital things in marriage, for it is ever present in a thousand ways. My fiancé and I feel that our constant co-operation along this line is one of the things that bind us most strongly together. If we were in constant disagreement about money I am afraid I should give up right now—Sympathetically, N.P.

Thank you for your interesting letter. I agree with you that agreement in financial matters is a very great help toward establishing understanding between two young people about to be married.

But don't dismiss as utterly hopeless the girl who is still young and foolish and living very much for the moment. Her values may be slightly distorted just now—through lack of experience and training—but there is a very good chance that she will learn to compromise with her economical fiancé if she's handled the right way. And don't forget that a little of her attitude is a valuable thing to have around the house.

I am sure both she and her fiancé will be interested in your letter and grateful for it.

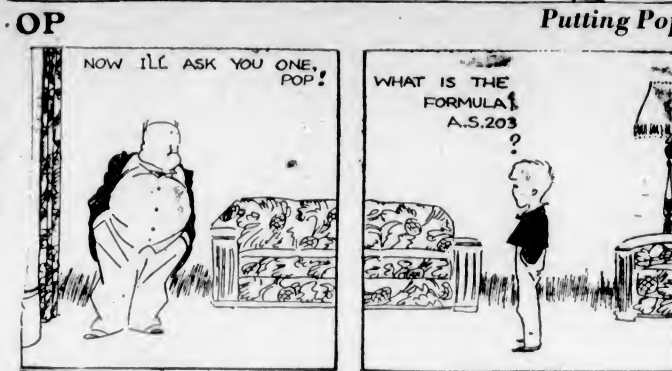

Miss K.P.: Sorry that I am unable to send on your name and address to the correspondent you mention. I shall be glad to publish any message you have if it is of general interest and help.

Laughing Girl Mystery

By Viola Paradise

SYNOPSIS

As Sheridan Dinard is hurrying up the stairs to the New York studio apartment of Adelaide Barry, his fiancée, to take her to a dinner party, the young archaeologist hears a stilling peal of laughter just as he is about to enter the door. He is startled to find an exact duplicate of a Egyptian statuette brought the day before by Dr. Willard Coe to the private museum of which he is the head. As a second peal of laughter is cut short as Sheridan remarks to Oswald, the colored superintendent, that from her laugh the girl is a blonde, with lavender eyes and a short upper lip. When he passes the door again the knocker is seen. Lester Wilcox, also connected with the Coe museum, is going to the same dinner party and tells his last, and when Adelaide mentions Sheridan's description of the beautiful blonde, Sheridan laughing says it is easy for an archaeologist to reconstruct a girl from her laugh. When they return, waiting policeman take them to the Coe apartment where he heard the laughter. A beautiful girl, a blonde with lavender eyes and a short upper lip, lies murdered on the floor. Inspector Higgins learns that Mr. and Mrs. Coe went to their country place. He calls them back and bullies everybody until the arrival of Assistant District Attorney Addison Alby and Joe Harrod, his investigator. All are fingerprinted and questioned. Just before daylight Alby tells them he wants them at his office at 2:30. Sheridan takes Adelaide to her apartment, and suddenly she asks: "Sherry, who is the girl?"

CHAPTER V

"Adelaide!"

"No, no. I know you didn't do it. But you did know her. I could feel it."

"Darling, I have no more idea who she is than you have."

"You could trust me, Sherry. I love you so much—I would somehow understand anything. Even if it were the worst."

He was silent, looking at her, almost angrily. At last he said, "Because I guessed her coloring from her laugh."

"No. Somehow I can believe that. Somehow I can believe even that you'd know she had a short upper lip, and that her eyes were that strange color—lavender. . . . But it was the way you looked at her."

"Listen, darling," he replied slowly. "I'm as puzzled as you are. To the best of my knowledge and belief, as they say when they wear oaths, I've never seen her in my life. And yet when I looked at her, there was something familiar about her. I must sometime have seen her without consciously knowing I saw her—in a crowd, perhaps. I may have heard her laugh, perhaps—though I don't see how I could, without turning to look. Darling, why are you looking at me like that?"

"You really and truly don't know, then?"

"No, I don't. But I'll tell you another thing. I knew she would look almost like that, apart from her coloring. I knew her cheek-bones would be like that. The funny part, her whole face was almost familiar to me except her mouth."

"But you said a short upper lip."

"I know it. But even so her mouth was quite unlike what I expected, though I can't say what I did expect. Darling," he went on, "you must believe me. Why, it's unthinkable that you shouldn't!"

"I do believe you, except—"

"Except what?" he asked, his face haggard.

"It wasn't even that she looked as you described her. It was the way you looked—"

"But, dear, you must admit anyone would be astonished—"

"Oh, the astonishment," she dismissed it. "It wasn't that. It—well, if I must tell you, it was something else. Look at me, Sherry. I'm not what you'd call a jealous person, am I?"

"Of course not!"

"But as you stared at that poor girl, even while I was shocked and torn with pity for her, I could sense some—some personal feeling in you—for her. And I looked at you suddenly, and—"

She stopped a moment and then finished with a rush of words, as if by their very speed she could push away their implication. "I felt a horrible pang of jealousy, because you looked at her the way I've never seen you look at anyone but me, as if—as if you had a great affection for her." And Adelaide burst into sobs.

But she did not resist him now when he took her in his arms. "Dearest darling," he said, "now that you've said it you must know it's ridiculous, don't you?"

"Yes."

"There, that's better. There now."

Adelaide pulled herself together. "Don't mind me, Sherry, dear. I promise not to be a hysterical wife. Now go on home and get some rest yourself. Funny, how just putting a fear into words will teach you how absurd it is. Now hurry home, and we'll talk everything over tomorrow. Will you call for me to go to Mr. Alby's office?"

"Of course, but I think I'll stay now."

"No you won't. Just kiss me good morning and then scurry."

Adelaide bolted the door after Sheridan had gone and quickly prepared for bed. No, she wasn't afraid to stay alone. She had often done so. But she still felt edgy and nervous. "A hot bath will fix that," she told herself, and went through the kitchen into the hall which led to the bath.

A skylight provided the kitchen with air and, by day, with light. As she walked toward it now she looked up, rather hoping to discover that the day had dawned. No, not yet.

Suddenly a tremor of fear shook her. There was nothing to be seen through the skylight. And yet she felt as if someone were there, looking in.

But presently, she reminded herself, that a short while before she had felt as if someone were in the apartment and Sherry had proved her fears absurd. So she forced herself to go on into the bathroom.

The hot water had its relaxing effect. She got into bed shortly and fell asleep at once.

She did not hear the creaking of the hall stairs as stealthy feet descended them.

A strange uneasiness troubled Sheridan as he left the house on Twelfth Street. Something more than puzzlement. An archaeologist was used to puzzlement. A bit of broken metal, a shaped rock, a fragment of pottery, and the thousands of other scraps of things found in buried cities, were parts of puzzles. But by now archaeologists had the key to many of these. These scraps of human mystery, however—well, perhaps a detective like Alby could make sense of them. Upon himself they had a distressing effect.

Especially disturbing had been a discovery he had made in Adelaide's kitchen. When he reached into the cupboard for her smock, his hand, touching the wood at the back, had encountered a roughness. On impulse he had tumbled in his mind was worse than the ache.

The confusion had acquired a new and freakish element. Why had he asked the policeman if the beggar had limped? Why, when he had come to, had there been an image of Mr. Coggs in his mind—an image of Mr. Coggs spreading out his hands to be fingerprinted—smooth hands, square hands with not a speck of hair growing about the knuckles?

The more he tried to marshal his thoughts, the more painful the confusion became. He gave it up, and set his alarm clock for nine. That would give him nearly three hours' sleep. Perhaps when he met Alby at ten his mind would have cleared.

He was drifting into sleep when a sudden thought—a conviction, rather—wakened him.

Somehow he knew that the best clue to the murder was the thing Adelaide had guessed, and which he had denied.

He had said truthfully that he did not know who the murdered girl was. Yet Adelaide had been right. Somehow more than shock and pity had seized him as he looked at her. Even now, remembering her as she lay on the floor of that mean parlor, her beauty of life, her strange lavender eyes, and the lips still parted, their silence mocking the laughter in which she had perished, even then a flood of tenderness and affection and personal love surged over him.

Yet Adelaide needn't have been jealous. This was different. It had nothing to do with Adelaide. . . . Nor, surely, with that strange sense of danger which still hung over him. But now he would, really, go to sleep. . . . The heaven for Adelaide. . . . And damn that beggar, who most certainly was not Mr. Coggs. (To Be Continued.)

the day, carry a pile of magazines in one arm while she removed a tray of glasses with her other. Perhaps Moradia had been putting the carving knife and the smocks away at the same time. Rather far-fetched, but possible.

The second explanation was more disconcerting: Suppose the murderer had got into the apartment and had hidden the weapon in the cupboard. . . . Suppose Higgins' men had found it there. . . . Adelaide's fright when they had entered the apartment a little while ago may not have been so baseless as he had tried to make her believe. Adelaide was a level-headed girl.

Maybe he shouldn't have left Adelaide. . . . Yet somehow he felt sure Adelaide was quite safe. . . . Was it himself, then, that he feared?

Sheridan was young enough to share the delusion that there is something shameful in fear. Angrily he straightened his shoulders. He had reached the Lexington Avenue subway station. But on impulse he decided to walk home. Exercise might clear his brain of this nonsense.

He walked briskly along, but by the time he reached Thirty-sixth Street, in which he lived, the puzzle was thicker rather than clearer. Why the fancy dress? Why the dog knocker? Why the Coggs' apartment? Why that feeling sense of familiarity about the room? But especially how could he have known what the girl would look like?

And who was she?

Half a block from the apartment house in which he lived a man slid out of a doorway. "Gimme a dime, mister. I been walking the streets all night."

"Hard luck," Sheridan, his mind occupied with the image of a blonde with lavender eyes, scarcely glanced at the man. He drew forth a handful of change from his pocket.

Then the beggar's fist flashed upward.

Sheridan was faintly conscious of the sound of coins hitting the sidewalk, of a shot, and a shrill whistle. He came to in a sea of brass buttons. The doorman of his apartment house and a policeman were bending over him.

"He's O.K. The shot must have missed," the policeman was saying. "You O.K., Mr. Dinard?" the doorman inquired.

Sheridan managed to sit up, but couldn't answer at once.

"You had a lucky break, Mr. Dinard," the doorman continued. "If a detective hadn't happened to be within half a block and the policeman on the beat hadn't heard the whistle—"

"Wait a minute," Sheridan was remembering now. "That beggar—"

"What did he look like?" the policeman demanded.

"Why, he was—"

"Why, he was losing his mind? He could remember that there had been a beggar, but not what he looked like. "Wait a minute," He felt the top of his head. No, it wasn't sore. And certainly a blow to the jaw ought not to have played such tricks with his mind.

"All I remember," he said, "is a turned-up collar and a slouch hat. And his fist. It had brownish hair growing just above his knuckles."

"Would you know him if you saw him?" asked the policeman.

"Oh, yes, I'm sure I must have noticed more about him than I can now remember. . . . I should have said he was middle height—and yet—by the way, did he limp?"

"I didn't see him, buddy," said the policeman.

The detective appeared at this moment. "He got away," he growled.

It was six o'clock when Sheridan reached his room. His head ached. But the confusion in his mind was worse than the ache.

The confusion had acquired a new and freakish element. Why had he asked the policeman if the beggar had limped? Why, when he had come to, had there been an image

It was six o'clock when Sheridan reached his room. His head ached. But the confusion in his mind was worse than the ache.

The confusion had acquired a new and freakish element. Why had he asked the policeman if the beggar had limped? Why, when he had come to, had there been an image of Mr. Coggs in his mind—an image of Mr. Coggs spreading out his hands to be fingerprinted—smooth hands, square hands with not a speck of hair growing about the knuckles?

The more he tried to marshal his thoughts, the more painful the confusion became. He gave it up, and set his alarm clock for nine. That would give him nearly three hours' sleep. Perhaps when he met Alby at ten his mind would have cleared.

He was drifting into sleep when a sudden thought—a conviction, rather—wakened him.

Somehow he knew that the best clue to the murder was the thing Adelaide had guessed, and which he had denied.

He had said truthfully that he did not know who the murdered girl was. Yet Adelaide had been right. Somehow more than shock and pity had seized him as he looked at her. Even now, remembering her as she lay on the floor of that mean parlor, her beauty of life, her strange lavender eyes, and the lips still parted, their silence mocking the laughter in which she had perished, even then a flood of tenderness and affection and personal love surged over him.

Yet Adelaide needn't have been jealous. This was different. It had nothing to do with Adelaide. . . . Nor, surely, with that strange sense of danger which still hung over him. But now he would, really, go to sleep. . . . The heaven for Adelaide. . . . And damn that beggar, who most certainly was not Mr. Coggs. (To Be Continued.)

the day, carry a pile of magazines in one arm while she removed a tray of glasses with her other. Perhaps Moradia had been putting the carving knife and the smocks away at the same time. Rather far-fetched, but possible.

The second explanation was more disconcerting: Suppose the murderer had got into the apartment and had hidden the weapon in the cupboard. . . . Suppose Higgins' men had found it there. . . . Adelaide's fright when they had entered the apartment a little while ago may not have been so baseless as he had tried to make her believe. Adelaide was a level-headed girl.

Maybe he shouldn't have left Adelaide. . . . Yet somehow he felt sure Adelaide was quite safe. . . . Was it himself, then, that he feared?

Sheridan was young enough to share the delusion that there is something shameful in fear. Angrily he straightened his shoulders. He had reached the Lexington Avenue subway station. But on impulse he decided to walk home. Exercise might clear his brain of this nonsense.

He walked briskly along, but by the time he reached Thirty-sixth Street, in which he lived, the puzzle was thicker rather than clearer. Why the fancy dress? Why the dog knocker? Why the Coggs' apartment? Why that feeling sense of familiarity about the room? But especially how could he have known what the girl would look like?

And who was she?

Half a block from the apartment house in which he lived a man slid out of a doorway. "Gimme a dime, mister. I been walking the streets all night."

"Hard luck," Sheridan, his mind occupied with the image of a blonde with lavender eyes, scarcely glanced at the man. He drew forth a handful of change from his pocket.

Then the beggar's fist flashed upward.

Sheridan was faintly conscious of the sound of coins hitting the sidewalk, of a shot, and a shrill whistle. He came to in a sea of brass buttons. The doorman of his apartment house and a policeman were bending over him.

"He's O.K. The shot must have missed," the policeman was saying. "You O.K., Mr. Dinard?" the doorman inquired.

Sheridan managed to sit up, but couldn't answer at once.

"You had a lucky break, Mr. Dinard," the doorman continued. "If a detective hadn't happened to be within half a block and the policeman on the beat hadn't heard the whistle—"

"Wait a minute," Sheridan was remembering now. "That beggar—"

"What did he look like?" the policeman demanded.

"Why, he was—"

"Why, he was losing his mind? He could remember that there had been a beggar, but not what he looked like. "Wait a minute," He felt the top of his head. No, it wasn't sore. And certainly a blow to the jaw ought not to have played such tricks with his mind.

"All I remember," he said, "is a turned-up collar and a slouch hat. And his fist. It had brownish hair growing just above his knuckles."

"Would you know him if you saw him?" asked the policeman.

"Oh, yes, I'm sure I must have noticed more about him than I can now remember. . . . I should have said he was middle height—and yet—by the way, did he limp?"

"I didn't see him, buddy," said the policeman.

The detective appeared at this moment. "He got away," he growled.

MAY CONTINUE SUBSIDY PLAN

Japanese Shipping Interests
Ask Huge Amount for New Tonnage

The Japanese Department of Communications has decided to renew the subsidy of shipbuilding scheme when it expires in March next. The Marine Commission met at the official residence of the Communications Minister late in July. It is believed that a detail plan was formulated then.

First introduced in 1932, this scheme has proved highly popular in Japanese shipping circles. It was found to be the most effective means of bringing up the Japanese shipping standard. The Japan Shipping Standard Improvement Association, backed by the Japan Shipbuilders' Association and the Shipowners' Association, has accordingly been petitioning the Government for its renewal.

According to the plan drafted by the Department of Communications, 500,000 tons are to be built in five years. On express condition that an equal tonnage of superannuated vessels is scrapped, the Government is to grant a subsidy of 50 yen per ton. An additional subsidy of 50 yen a ton will be granted to those vessels with certain special provisions. The Department of Communications estimates the total subsidy at 27,500,000 yen.

All vessels built under this scheme must have a displacement of over 4,000 tons and a minimum speed of thirteen and one-half knots, while the vessels to be scrapped must be over twenty-five years old and over 1,000 tons. It is worthy of note that scrapping is to be made at a ratio of one ton to one ton newly built. The existing scheme stipulates a ratio of two to one. Another charge is that whereas the old scheme excluded passenger vessels, the new one covers all classes.

There are at present 500,000 tons of old vessels aged over twenty-five years, which, with no replacements, will be brought up to 830,000 tons in 1940. The renewal of the subsidy building scheme, therefore, is welcomed in shipping circles. It is said the Department of Finance is supporting the scheme.

WILL ROGERS WILL BE SEEN HERE TOMORROW

His wife wants him to retire and play a little, but all play and no work makes Will a wild boy. That, in brief, is the story of Will Rogers' latest picture, "Handy Andy," coming to the Dominion Theatre tomorrow. Advance reports from the previews say this is the funniest comedy of his career. And the highlights of the story bear this out.

Of course, there's more to the story than that. Much more. Among other things, Will serves as Cupid in his daughter's romance with a young man his wife doesn't approve of. And there's a surprise ending that can't be tipped off in advance.

That Body of Yours

LIVER OR LIVER EXTRACT FOR PERNICIOUS ANAEMIA

Since it has been definitely proved during the past few years that pernicious anaemia (formerly incurable) can now be cured by the use of liver, a great many methods of preparing liver are now available so as to make it more inviting for everyday use.

As some patients are not very well, in fact, must remain in bed, it is impossible for them to use liver daily no matter how attractively prepared and served.

Further, in these serious cases, one is an important factor, and so Dr. Wm. P. Murphy, in New England Journal of Medicine, points out that "It is important that the blood be brought to a normal level in the shortest possible period of time and then kept at that level. Thus where large amounts of liver daily cannot be tolerated by the patient as his appetite and stomach rebel, then liver extract should be injected into the muscles to achieve quick results.

For the patient whose blood has become thin again, that is, when there has been a relapse, liver, either broiled or as raw pulp, should be eaten in amounts of one-half pound or more daily until the red blood corpuscles are back to normal in number. After they are up to normal, the liver should be given in sufficient amounts to keep the corpuscles at this point. The amount usually necessary to keep the blood normal, after it has become normal, is about one-quarter pound, that is, four or five ounces daily.

Now the point is that while the average patient can take liver by mouth in sufficient quantities to bring the blood up to its normal richness and keep it there, nevertheless there are patients in such a condition that immediate results must be obtained.

Thus, by the use of liver extract, new red blood corpuscles begin to form in thirty-six to forty-eight hours after the first injection, and the increase will be at its full height at about the fourth or fifth day, which is two to five days sooner than when liver is taken by mouth.

Dr. Murphy points out that with the injection of liver extract, "one may expect an average daily increase of cells at a rate almost twice that observed with liver or liver extract administered by mouth."

Remember then that ordinary liver taken by mouth will bring up the blood to normal just as surely as the injection of the extract into the muscles, but will not do it as quickly.

COWICHAN SCOUT CAMP

The Cowichan District Scout Camp began Monday, July 23, and concluded yesterday. The Wolf Cubs will occupy the camp from today.

The camp is on the old Roberts property, overlooking Roberts Bay, Kuper Island. The camp, which is known as Camp Roberts, in honor of the late Percy Roberts, is under the supervision of District Commissioner Arthur Bluchlager, assisted by Honorary Commissioner H. T. Ravenhill, District Scouters E. M. Dopping, Hepenstall, Assistant Scouters R. K. Cairns and P. McPherson, and A. H. A. Collison.

There are thirty-eight officers and Scouts in camp, and thirty Wolf Cubs will be under canvas this week. The boys come from the Duncan, Quamichan and Nanaimo troops and packs. The usual camp activities, as well as bathing and boating, have been greatly enjoyed. Last Wednesday the Scouts hiked over to the Kuper Island Industrial School and were shown over the buildings by Rev. Father Gertz.

Thursday there were many visitors to the camp. They were entertained at tea by the Scouts. The campsite has been loaned by the Spicer, the present tenant of the property. The camp will break up on August 4.
